

General Social and Behavioral Sciences courses aid students in understanding human behavior and interactions – how people live, produce, distribute resources, develop institutions, and resolve conflicts. These courses may focus on topics, problems, and methods of concern to the social sciences.

GOALS

The purposes to be served by GSS courses are the following:

- 1.