New Jersey Racing Commission considers approval for fixed-odds wagering According to ROI NJ, the New Jersey Racing Commission may be close to approving the use of fixed-odds wagering at Monmouth Park Racetrack. Fixed-odds wagering, used by sportsbooks accepting bets on professional and amateur sporting events, sets the betting odds in advance of the event and does not change them. Pari-mutuel wagering, used at racetracks to accept bets on horse races, sets temporary betting odds which continue to change until the start of a race. The change is expected to impact gaming tax revenues generated from horse racing.
