Galloway Township, NJ - President Herman Saatkamp will preside over a Commencement ceremony at The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey on Sunday, Dec. 14, 2014, which will include a keynote address by a founding member of the college's faculty.

The ceremony begins at 11 a.m. in the Sports Center, located on the college's main Galloway campus.

As of today, 891 summer and fall baccalaureate, master's and doctoral degree candidates are slated to receive degrees this month. Over 750 baccalaureate degree candidates may participate in the Sunday ceremony with 135 master's and doctoral degree candidates participating in a spring Commencement ceremony in May.

William T. Daly, Distinguished Professor of Political Science, of Port Republic, NJ, will deliver the Commencement address. "Brilliant," "the best" and "big-hearted" are among the words students used to describe Daly on the college's Facebook page. Daly "started my love of politics," wrote Russell Huegel who took Introduction to Politics with Daly in the fall of 1988. "He always challenged me and made me work harder for him than any other professor. We were so lucky he came to Stockton," Jennifer King commented.

As a Mayflower founding faculty member, he delivered his first lectures in the meeting rooms of the Mayflower Hotel on the Atlantic City Boardwalk in 1971, where the college's first classes were held before the Galloway campus was complete. He smiles when he recalls the memory of pigeons puttering through paperwork on his desk after onshore winds steered them through his oceanfront office windows.
