Galloway Township, NJ- Students at The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey are distinctive – and a new blog on the college’s home page celebrates their unique achievements.

“Distinctive Stockton Students” showcases noteworthy successes of undergraduate and graduate students. Students have traveled to China to learn about traditional medicine, to Haiti to provide physical therapy and a recent grad is on a Fulbright grant teaching English and Physics in the Czech Republic. Others are serving as trustees on various boards at the college.

The blog will be updated regularly with noteworthy accomplishments by Stockton student scholars, community activists, world travelers, researchers, artists, athletes and other innovators.
