Galloway, NJ – The Stockton Center on Successful Aging’s next professional workshop in the First Wednesday series is designed to help professionals working with older adults.

“The Benefits of Socialization for Older Adults, Especially During Winter and Holiday Seasons” is scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 4, 2013 from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. at the Health Center at Galloway, located at 66 West Jimmie Leeds Road in Galloway.

The workshop will be presented by Patricia Ayers, MSW, LSW. Ms. Ayers is a licensed social worker and received her Master’s degree from The University of Pennsylvania in 2007. She has been an adjunct faculty member at Stockton for the past four years teaching a course called “Exploring the Dying Process”. She is a medical social worker for Holy Redeemer Home Care and Hospice and is a contributor to their on-line blog for caregivers called Caring With Confidence www.careconfidently.com.

“This lecture will address the causes and consequences of increased social isolation in old age,” Ayers said. “We will explore risk factors such as physical, cognitive and psychological losses and how they impact the individual’s ability to stay socially connected.”

She said the seminar will look at how a perceived lack of social support, especially during the holiday season and winter months, may lead to increased depression, chronic illness and a reduced life expectancy. Ayers will review possible interventions that will assist in promoting social engagement and thus improving overall health and well-being. Participants will be able to identify factors that contribute to loss of social
