Galloway Township, NJ- The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey is offering a summer tuition discount for undergraduate courses as well as a summer housing discount on its Galloway campus. The discounted course rates are also being offered at the Stockton instructional sites located in Manahawkin and Hammonton.

Stockton's four summer sessions, which have start dates in May and July, are open to students enrolled in degree programs, non-matriculated students and students currently enrolled at other institutions. Students can save more than $300 for each four-credit undergraduate course. A 20 percent housing discount is also offered to those wishing to reside on the main Galloway campus during the summer.

In addition to a wide selection at its main campus in Galloway, Stockton's Manahawkin instructional site is offering courses in psychology, documentary photography, statistics, and other topics. Kramer Hall, the college's Hammonton instructional site, is offering courses in communications disorders, education, language and the Holocaust. More than 287 courses -
