

Stockton Provost Harvey Kesselman on National Panel for Roundtable Discussion on Future of Higher Education

American Council on Education to Convene on Critical Issues

For Immediate Release

Monday, December 05, 2011

Contact: Tim Kelly
Office of Public Relations
101 Vera King Farris Drive
Galloway Township, NJ 08205
Tim.Kelly@stockton.edu
(609) 652-4950

Galloway Twp., NJ – Dr. Harvey Kesselman, Provost and Executive Vice President of The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey has been selected to a national panel of the American Council on Education (ACE) to discuss the future of higher education in America.

The focus group will meet in Philadelphia later this month to help shape the organization's advocacy on such key issues as :

- The future and shape of higher education enterprise
- Evolving role of government in higher education
- The changing state of college and university fiscal issues
- A changing workforce's needs regarding curriculum development and educational delivery
- Technology's evolving role in education, student success and business productivity

"It is an honor to have been selected to participate on such a prestigious panel," said Dr.

