Contact: Tim Kelly

The inaugural exhibitions include works by Visual Arts Faculty Members, Alfonso Corpus, Frank Kallop, Michael McGarvey, Jedediah Morfit, Hannah Ueno and Wendel White.

The other part of the exhibition is a collection of recent paintings by David Ahlsted, a retired former Stockton faculty member. The event is free and open to the public.

This new facility is comparable the very best galleries one would see in New York or San Francisco," Stockton President Herman J. Saatkamp said. "It is a superb venue to display the works of feet of wall space. The upper gallery features a floor cutout overlooking the lower gallery and also is approximately 2,250 square feet with 163 feet of wall space.

The lower gallery will show the visual arts faculty exhibition. In the upper gallery, Ahlsted's solo exhibition features a selection of painted studies for his commissioned mural at the new Campus Center. Ahlsted's four murals are New Jersey Pine Barrens: Spring, Summer, Fall Winter
