Galloway Township, NJ- The Magee Rehab Eagles wheelchair rugby team will play an exhibition game at The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey at 6 p.m., Friday October 12, 2012 in the I-Wing Gymnasium here.

“This is the sixth year we have had the Eagles come to our campus,” said Professor of Physical Therapy, Dr. Mary Lou Galantino. “These folks are amazing athletes, and very courageous people. They do a good job of showing the abilities of people living with spinal cord injuries.”

The Eagles will take on a squad of able-bodied Stockton community members (both teams are in wheelchairs) for an evening of entertainment and awareness of spinal cord injuries. There will also be a silent auction to benefit spinal cord injury rehabilitation services.

The event is co-sponsored by the Stockton physical therapy program and Bacharach Rehabilitation Hospital’s spinal cord injury support group.
