Professor Honored for Decades of Dedication to Community

The head coaches of Stocktonís intercollegiate teams enjoyed much success and numerous highlights this semester. Championships were won, accolades were earned and milestones were achieved as the latest chapter in the proud history of Stockton Athletics was written over the last three-and-a-half months.

led the Osprey volleyball team to victory once again, winning its sixth consecutive New Jersey Ath-

Walker earned her 200th career victory on Oct. 17 and later was named NJAC Coach of the Year for the fourth time in her eight seasons.

led the Stockton field hockey team to its best season yet as the Ospreys set a school record with 12 victories and reached both the NJAC playoffs and ECAC tournament for the first time ever. Andre was rewarded with the NJAC Coach of the Year honor for guiding her squad, including a nucleus of seven seniors who comprised her first recruiting class when she was hired at Stockton five years ago.

and the Osprey menís soccer team finished on a high note by winning the programís third ECAC Metro championship. With 15 victories, Stockton compiled its highest win total since 2008 and helped Haines move within one triumph of the 250-win plateau.

and the Stockton womenís soccer team manufactured another strong campaign, winning 17 games for the second year in a row. Juengert collected his 150th career win on Sept. 11.

Second-year and the Stockton cross country teams performed well throughout the season. Resch led the Osprey women to their best finish at the NCAA Regionals since 2006 (17th out of 42 teams) and also guided a young menís squad that featured seven freshmen and just two seniors to a solid campaign.

and the Osprey womenís tennis team continued their run of success with an 8-3 record and christened their new home courts at the North Athletic Complex with a victory on Oct. 2 in the first match at the new site.

International Education Week Featured Many Campus Events

International Education Week featured dozens of events, including student work, faculty panels and speakers from the United Nations and the U.S. Department of State, said India Karavackas, director of the Office of International Services.

Members of the Confucius Institute of Chinese Opera at Binghamton University - State University of New York gave a performance of òAmazing Chinaó in the Campus Center Theater. The production featured different elements of Chinese drama such as acrobatics, martial arts, instrumental music, opera and vocals.

International Education Week, Nov. 17-21, 2013 is celebrated by colleges across the globe and is a dual enterprise of the U.S. Department of Education and the U.S. Department of State.

òThe faculty panels were informative, dynamic and well-attended,ó Karavackas said. òThe faculty commented that they really enjoyed participating on the panels and that they learned from each other.ó

International flags on display in the Campus Center Osprey Food Court to celebrate International Education Week Nov. 17-21.

Claudia Diaz, a human rights officer with the U.N. Office of Genocide Prevention and the Responsibility to Protect spoke about preventing genocide. Patricia Guy, diplomat-in-residence, talked about careers in the State Department to a òriveted audience,ó Karavackas said.

She said posters done by returning Study Abroad students to illustrate their classroom work and foreign experiences òwill be a key component from here on outó of International Education Week.

Send Us Your News!