

St

Physical Therapy Faculty Present Research at Conference

Faculty Band and More at "Hammonton Loves Stockton"

CWA Gathers Valentines for Overseas Troops

Stockapella Wins Two Awards

New Grandparents and Graduate in Stockton Community

Joseph Rubenstein's Classes Working With Storm Victims

Four faculty members from The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey presented at the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA) Combined Sections Meeting in San Diego on Jan. 21-25. Ten Stockton students also participated and three of them won APTA Oncology Section Research awards.

Dr. Bess Kathrins, interim dean of the School of Health Sciences, and five students participated in a platform presentation of a study titled: "Efficacy of an Alternative Post Acute Rehab Setting for an Orthopedic Population." Psychology Professor Michael Frank and Dr. Brenda Stevenson-Marshall, Special Assistant to the Provost for the Health Sciences, were co-authors of the study, which resulted from collaborative research between Stockton, the Rothman Institute and the Bacharach Institute for Rehabilitation.

Dr. Mary Lou Galantino, professor of Physical Therapy, presented "Wellness Coaching for Cancer Survivors: Strategies for Optimizing Quality of Life."

Three of Galantino's students, Nicole Piela, Mary Callens and Gregg Cardena, won the National Student Award for Research in Cancer Rehabilitation for their abstract and platform presentation titled: "Impact of Tai Chi on Functional Outcomes of Breast Cancer Survivors with Aromatase

Congratulations to Grant Stambaugh, Stockton Class of 2011, son of Associate Dean of Students Craig Stambaugh, for his graduation from the Maryland State Police Academy on Friday, Feb. 8. He was accepted into the 139th state

Send Us Your News!
